Course Objectives

This course has three main objectives. The first is to introduce the student to basic concepts and theories underpinning the context, operation and flow of international business.

The second objective of the course is to heighten students’ awareness of current issues in the field.

The third objective of the course is to refine students’ communication skills.

Learning Outcomes

Directly related to the three (3) course objectives listed above, by the end of the course in International Business BUSI 1701 students, we expect students to aspire to and achieve a high level of success. The learning outcomes students should achieve are highlighted below.

1) Understanding Concepts and Theories for International Business

Students that succeed in 1701 will gain an understanding of the scale and complexity of the various dimensions to international business. Students will learn about the global trading system, including major trends toward a global marketplace, and how complexities such as differences in language, culture, history, and political views may sometimes complicate the evolution of a global marketplace.

Our goal together will be to compare political systems and institutions, to contrast the structures of companies doing business in international markets, and to examine and critique corporate strategies in developing these markets. Together we will also explore ethical issues in international business. And we will dissect what drives companies to enter the international arena, and what facilitates their success.

By the end of term in 1701, students should be able to explain to an interested questioner what is propelling the trend to globalization in our era, and what this means for consumers, and for companies & workers, and for governments. Students should be able to discuss differences in regional markets, to describe the institutions and agreements that provide structure for global commerce; and to understand how supra-national organizations, both large and small, facilitate international business.

2) Awareness of Current Issues in International Business

Students will learn that every country has to address some issues and concerns with international trade and foreign investment. Because all the students in the class BUSI 1701 have embarked on a degree in international business, they will require an understanding not only of basic principles, but also how the a solid understanding of the forces involved in globalization (for and against) that have an impact on countries, businesses and individuals on a daily basis.

Discussion in class, informal quizzes and country analyses will highlight these issues. Students will explain these issues in their analysis, and examine their respective importance.

3) Enhanced and Improved Communication Skills

The third objective of the course is to refine each student’s communication skills. Success in university and in your later career will depend greatly on your ability to communicate your ideas clearly and convincingly. Facility in communication goes beyond being able to read and write clearly. The capacity to reason systematically, to analyse complex issues, and to evaluate and integrate information from multiple sources is the basis for effective communication.

As part of the course you will be required to write four papers of varying length which will be evaluated on how well they are crafted as well as on their content. Each paper will be critiqued with information provided back to you on how the paper could be improved. Students will also participate in an oral presentation.
The aim of the course objective is to help students improve on their abilities to explain and contrast complex arguments, and to discuss issues affecting international business. The procession of assigned papers of increasing length should help students improve their respective skills: organizing their papers, constructing a position or explanation or argument on the subject, critiquing and contrasting (where appropriate), then reaching an appropriate summary and conclusion.

It must be repeated for greater emphasis: Success in your career will depend greatly on your ability to communicate your ideas clearly and convincingly. Communication should then include sound analysis, reasonable conclusions, and a strong ability to communicate clearly. So an appropriate outcome for our course BUSI 1701 should be improvement in written and verbal presentation skills.

Assignments and Assessment

The weights for the six assignments in this course are given below. The four papers are due in class during the week indicated, and for which final deadlines will be announced in our 1st lecture.

Late papers will have two points per day deducted from their final mark. Papers will not be accepted more than five days after they are due.

These will be relatively short papers on a subject that will be announced in class. Each paper will be evaluated both for writing style and content. The grade will be assigned on content and organization, but papers that are deemed as unsatisfactory in terms of style will be returned for rewriting and the grade not assigned until the paper has been revised satisfactorily. These papers must be revised and resubmitted with a week of their return. The fourth paper will be a more extensive analysis of a topic that will be assigned in class. Students receive two grades for the presentation. One reflects their presentation performance while the other is based on the content of the presentation as a whole. The final exam will cover material from the entire course. The date and time of the final exam will be announced approximately half way through the semester.

Required calculator in BUSI course examinations

If you are purchasing a calculator, we recommend any one of the following options: Texas Instruments BA II Plus (including Pro Model), Hewlett Packard HP 12C (including Platinum model), Staples Financial Calculator, Sharp EL-738C & Hewlett Packard HP 10bII

Group work

The Sprott School of Business encourages group assignments in the school for several reasons. They provide you with opportunities to develop and enhance interpersonal, communication, leadership, follower-ship and other group skills. Group assignments are also good for learning integrative skills for putting together a complex task. Your professor may assign one or more group tasks/assignments/projects in this course. Before embarking on a specific problem as a group, it is your responsibility to ensure that the problem is meant to be a group assignment and not an individual one.

In accordance with the Carleton University Undergraduate Calendar (p 34), the letter grades assigned in this course will have the following percentage equivalents:
A+ = 90-100  B+ = 77-79  C+ = 67-69  D+ = 57-59

Requests for Academic Accommodations

Academic Accommodations for Students with Disabilities

The Paul Menton Centre for Students with Disabilities (PMC) provides services to students with Learning Disabilities (LD), psychiatric/mental health disabilities, Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD), Autism Spectrum Disorders (ASD), chronic medical conditions, and impairments in mobility, hearing, and vision. If you have a disability requiring academic accommodations in this course, please contact PMC at 613-520-6608 or pmc@carleton.ca for a formal evaluation. If you are already registered with the PMC, contact your PMC coordinator to send me your Letter of Accommodation at the beginning of the term, and no later than two weeks before the first in-class scheduled test or exam requiring accommodation (if applicable). After requesting accommodation from PMC, meet with me to ensure accommodation arrangements are made.

- The deadlines for contacting the Paul Menton Centre regarding accommodation for final exams for the December 2014 exam period is November 7, 2014 and for the April 2015 exam period is March 6, 2015.

For Religious Obligations:
Students requesting academic accommodation on the basis of religious obligation should make a formal, written request to their instructors for alternate dates and/or means of satisfying academic requirements. Such requests should be made during the first two weeks of class, or as soon as possible after the need for accommodation is known to exist, but no later than two weeks before the compulsory event.

Accommodation is to be worked out directly and on an individual basis between the student and the instructor(s) involved. Instructors will make accommodations in a way that avoids academic disadvantage to the student. Students or instructors who have questions or want to confirm accommodation eligibility of a religious event or practice may refer to the Equity Services website for a list of holy days and Carleton's Academic Accommodation policies, or may contact an Equity Services Advisor in the Equity Services Department for assistance.
For Pregnancy:
Pregnant students requiring academic accommodations are encouraged to contact an Equity Advisor in Equity Services to complete a letter of accommodation. The student must then make an appointment to discuss her needs with the instructor at least two weeks prior to the first academic event in which it is anticipated the accommodation will be required.

Academic Integrity
Violations of academic integrity are a serious academic offence. Violations of academic integrity – presenting another’s ideas, arguments, words or images as your own, using unauthorized material, misrepresentation, fabricating or misrepresenting research data, unauthorized co-operation or collaboration or completing work for another student – weaken the quality of the degree and will not be tolerated. Penalties may include expulsion; suspension from all studies at Carleton; suspension from full-time studies; a refusal of permission to continue or to register in a specific degree program; academic probation; and a grade of Failure in the course, amongst others. Students are expected to familiarize themselves with and follow the Carleton University Student Academic Integrity Policy which is available, along with resources for compliance at http://www2.carleton.ca/sasc/advisingcentre/academic-integrity/.
