Overview

Leadership is arguably in a state of crisis, both in the business context and in the larger world. While leadership is a complex concept, leadership education is often characterized by formulaic and normative theories that do not take into account the multi-faceted, emotional, and highly personal relationships between leaders, followers, and their various contexts.

In this course, you will be looking at and reflecting on what makes a good leader, how you personally fit into that vision of leadership, and some of the major approaches to leadership that are beginning to influence our thinking about the concept. Key to this process is developing a greater understanding of yourself, and how you can be an effective leader, whatever your position. Much emphasis will be placed on active participation in class and communication skills. This course is not a simple overview of leadership theories with the expectation that you will be able to apply concepts when the time comes. It starts with the assumption that we are all potential leaders and it is up to each of us to make personal decisions about how we want to lead and have an impact on our worlds on a daily basis.

COURSEWORK

Individual Component

Blogs. These will form a major component of your course work. You will be required to write eight weekly blogs. For this purpose, you will need to open up an online free account (wordpress.com). Each week you will write a blog post, and by 6pm every Thursday, post this on your personal blog. The entry may be related to the readings to be done during the week, a subject covered in the preceding class session, or other specified material. Several other members of the class (but no one else) will have access to your blog and have the ability to post comments. More details on setting up your account, entry content and evaluation will be posted separately, as also discussed on the first day of class.

Class contribution. Participation is an important element of this course, as the goal is to transform the class into a community of learning. In order to achieve this goal, you will need to be willing to share your thoughts, opinions, values, and experiences with the other members of your group and the class, stay on topic, focus on class activities, and offer honest feedback. Other elements of participation include presence and quality participation in class discussion, unannounced presentation of your blog post to the class (you must be present when your name is drawn), completion of the simulations, attendance at the field trip, and thoughtful comments on the posts/presentations of others. Effective leadership requires willingness to offer feedback and coaching to others. Therefore, each week a portion of class time will be devoted to group discussion of, and feedback on, group members’ weekly entries. You will be evaluated by, and evaluate, your group members’ effectiveness in this role. Your participation mark will thus be based as much on your timely completion of these responsibilities as simply speaking up in class. Electronic devices in sight will cause this portion of your mark to go down (see “Class Policies” section below).

Simulation. This is a mandatory exercise for all students enrolled in the course. Proof of purchase of the simulation must be provided in order to receive any credit for this activity (reflected in blog entries and class contribution). The individual simulation will cost about $15. Instructions on how to register/download the simulations will be given in class. The simulation does not have specific marks attached to it but you will not be able to complete the blog entries for those weeks.

Individual presentation critique. Certain weeks, at the beginning of class, class members will be randomly selected to present their blog entries (without use of electronic aid or notes). These small talks will be at least 4 minutes long. (This does not include 'question' time). They will be video recorded and given to you, and you will then provide a one-page self-critique of your performance. More information will be provided to you on how to approach the critique.

Individual Report. You will write a report on a subject of your choice (within the Leadership domain) based on a book, movie, or other expressions of art. Details will be provided in class.

Group Component

“Call to action” presentation. This is a test of your group’s ability to make a convincing, coherent, compelling “call to action” in the form of a presentation. You will be evaluated by the other members of the class in terms of how convincing you are.

Term project. Your group will create a leadership training intervention that illustrates leadership concepts. Such group project will also involve peer evaluation, which will have an impact on your group project marks.

Class policies/ work ethics

1. This class is an SFZ (Screen Free Zone). You do not need laptops to take notes, and smartphones should be turned off and left in your bags.
2. Work must be submitted on time in order to receive full credit. With the exception of blog entries, if an assignment is late, the mark will be reduced by 25% for each day it is late.
3. In your written submissions, spelling and grammar count. This is an important part of good communication and maintaining your credibility. Bad writing will be penalized; in group work, read each other’s work to make sure it makes the cut.
4. No Wikipedia references please. Any paper with Wikipedia content will be returned. If you want to know why this is the case, please ask me

Group work
The Sprott School of Business encourages group assignments in the school for several reasons. They provide you with opportunities to develop and enhance interpersonal, communication, leadership, follower-ship and other group skills. Group assignments are also good for learning integrative skills for putting together a complex task. Your professor may assign one or more group tasks/assignments/projects in this course. Before embarking on a specific problem as a group, it is your responsibility to ensure that the problem is meant to be a group assignment and not an individual one.

Medical certificate
Please note that in all occasions that call for a medical certificate you must use or furnish the information demanded in the standard university form. http://www1.carleton.ca/registrar/forms/

Requests for Academic Accommodations

Academic Accommodations for Students with Disabilities
The Paul Menton Centre for Students with Disabilities (PMC) provides services to students with Learning Disabilities (LD), psychiatric/mental health disabilities, Attention Deficit
Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD), Autism Spectrum Disorders (ASD), chronic medical conditions, and impairments in mobility, hearing, and vision. If you have a disability requiring academic accommodations in this course, please contact PMC at 613-520-6608 or pmc@carleton.ca for a formal evaluation. If you are already registered with the PMC, contact your PMC coordinator to send me your Letter of Accommodation at the beginning of the term, and no later than two weeks before the first in-class scheduled test or exam requiring accommodation (if applicable). After requesting accommodation from PMC, meet with me to ensure accommodation arrangements are made. Please consult the PMC website for the deadline to request accommodations for the formally-scheduled exam (if applicable).

- The deadlines for contacting the Paul Menton Centre regarding accommodation for final exams for the December 2013 exam period is November 8, 2013 and for the April 2014 exam period is March 7, 2014.

For Religious Obligations:

Students requesting academic accommodation on the basis of religious obligation should make a formal, written request to their instructors for alternate dates and/or means of satisfying academic requirements. Such requests should be made during the first two weeks of class, or as soon as possible after the need for accommodation is known to exist, but no later than two weeks before the compulsory event.

Accommodation is to be worked out directly and on an individual basis between the student and the instructor(s) involved. Instructors will make accommodations in a way that avoids academic disadvantage to the student.

Students or instructors who have questions or want to confirm accommodation eligibility of a religious event or practice may refer to the Equity Services website for a list of holy days and Carleton’s Academic Accommodation policies, or may contact an Equity Services Advisor in the Equity Services Department for assistance.

For Pregnancy:

Pregnant students requiring academic accommodations are encouraged to contact an Equity Advisor in Equity Services to complete a letter of accommodation. The student must then make an appointment to discuss her needs with the instructor at least two weeks prior to the first academic event in which it is anticipated the accommodation will be required.

Academic Integrity

Violations of academic integrity are a serious academic offence. Violations of academic integrity – presenting another’s ideas, arguments, words or images as your own, using unauthorized material, misrepresentation, fabricating or misrepresenting research data, unauthorized co-operation or collaboration or completing work for another student – weaken the quality of the degree and will not be tolerated. Penalties may include expulsion; suspension from all studies at Carleton; suspension from full-time studies; a refusal of permission to continue or to register in a specific degree program; academic probation; and a grade of Failure in the course, amongst others. Students are expected to familiarize themselves with and follow the Carleton University Student Academic Integrity Policy which is available, along with resources for compliance at http://www2.carleton.ca/sasc/advisingcentre/academic-integrity/.
