Final exam date: April 14, 2016

Preparation and participation:

The final exam will use a business case format. Using a firm or organization in a particular sector, students will be assessed on their application of different analytical theories and tools to analyse and assess the relative attractiveness of various foreign markets as well as to analyse and assess the appropriateness of different entry modes and strategies for those selected markets. Students will be assessed on their ability to use the foregoing analysis and assessment to formulate and defend a recommended foreign market entry or expansion strategy across key foreign markets for the firm’s products and/or services.
Missed assignments and deferred examination:

If a student is absent from class when an assignment is due, then the student must submit their assignment by email on the due date. In the case of a medical certificate, please contact the instructor as soon as possible.
For deferred final examinations, the student must make arrangements with the professor to write the final examination within a reasonable time after the date on which the final examination was written.

Deferred Final Examination:
Students unable to write a final examination because of illness or other circumstances beyond their control must contact the instructor in writing to request a deferred exam. Permission may be granted when the absence is supported by a medical certificate and or appropriate document/s to support the reason for the deferral. Deferred exams are not granted for students who have made travel arrangements that conflict with examination schedule.
COURSE SCHEDULE

It is the responsibility of students to keep up-to-date with changes announced in class.

PEDAGOGICAL APPROACH

Cases are used to illustrate different situations to support learning by “doing”. In this way, the classroom becomes a laboratory for testing decision-making and communication skills. To be an effective learning process, each student must come to class prepared to discuss each case. Prompt and reliable attendance and careful preparation are essential.

Each student’s contribution in class should:

- improve the class understanding;
- build on previous analysis and commentary;
- understand the comments of others;
- add value to class discussions; and
- respect the views and contributions of others
Cases should be prepared in detail BEFORE class: identify the issues, assess the pros and cons of alternatives, and be able to defend your conclusions and recommendations IN class. Students will be able to evaluate their respective analysis and recommendations with respect to the class sessions. There is more than one good approach to a particular case analysis. If one’s approach differs from that in class, it is not necessarily wrong. When assessing their analysis, students should consider:

- If their arguments are logically consistent
- If they are using relevant concepts appropriately
- If they have failed to consider a major factor in the case
- If they have placed the wrong emphasis on a particular issue in the case

The following is a suggested approach or guidelines for the group memo assignment:

MEMO GUIDELINES
(Susan Greenfield, N.A., M.B.A., Ph.D.)

The object of a memo is to achieve DENSITY, not BREADTH. There are many interesting and, in peripheral ways, relevant factors in a case. Your task, however, is to distill out the small set of core issues or problems around which the case (and, hence, the good memo) is built.

Heading: State the recipient, originator and date.

Subject: The subject reads like a title. It gives as much specific information about the memo content as is consistent with acceptable title length. Do not give a set of objectives.

Problem: The memo should begin with a statement of the strategic issue/problem you will address. This definition is the most important factor you will consider because it determines the direction that the rest of the memo will take. The terms "issue" and "problem", in this context, do not mean general, overall situation descriptions. Do not give a brief summation of the case. Do not cram the case into one or two questions. Do not recount the decision option(s). Do not make the mistake of thinking that the problem is obvious. It is not. You will discover it only at the end of an in-depth analysis. Study the case carefully and ask what symptoms of malaise (or potential malaise) and what causes for these symptoms lie at its heart. A good problem definition, given at the beginning, keeps the memo tightly structured because everything you discuss after that point, in both the recommendation and analysis sections, must relate to that problem.

Recommendation: State what solution you recommend. It must relate back to the symptoms and causes you have defined above. If the word limit permits, elaborate with brief details. Do not argue your point in this section. Because the reader knows what your recommendation is, he or she has a reference point from which to understand your issue discussion. Thus, the recommendation, given up front, also helps to keep the memo tight.
Discussion of Alternatives and Recommendations: State concisely what other alternatives you have considered, briefly giving factors in favor and the reasons for your rejection. If the alternatives have arguments in common, group the discussion issues together to save on words. This part of the memo can be a gloss. Also argue in favor of your recommendation, giving as much concrete detail (facts, figures, numerical calculations) as possible. Indicate briefly that you understand whatever drawbacks may exist to the solution you have chosen. Remember that this solution and the arguments you make for it must address the problem you have defined. Show how they address the problem better than the options that you have rejected. BE EXPLICIT. Do not simply recount case facts and assume that their relevance is obvious.

Implementation: Give a practical (in terms of constraints outlined in the case) plan for implementing your recommendation. Whenever possible, answer "who", "what", "when", "where", "how much". Do not omit damage control suggestions. If there are major threats or risks to your solution, state how you plan to surmount them.

Appendices: The core of the case must be well explained. It must be able to standalone without benefit from the appendices; otherwise, the function of the memo is negated. The appendices are included for the convenience of the reader and should not require arduous effort on his or her part. The reader must be able to see fairly quickly the relevance of the appendix you have cited, to the point you are making in the memo. Hence, appendices will consist of excerpted numbers, truncated lists of key facts, numerical calculations, charts and graphs. It is useful to put a short summary statement on the presented data, at the bottom of each appendix.

Guidance on Citations/Bibliography:

Footnotes:
Every source for citations, statistics, tables, etc. should be sequentially referenced to a footnote at the bottom of the page. Full information should be provided to allow a reader to know exactly where you obtained the data, remembering that direct quotations require the specifics of page number. When a subsequent citation is made to the exact same one that proceeds you may identify it as ibid (for more details see http://www.chicagomanualofstyle.org.proxy.library.carleton.ca/16/ch13/ch13_sec064.html).

Bibliography:
It is important that you follow a recognized style to present a comprehensive bibliography that ensures an integrated alphabetical order and recognizes multiple citations to same year documents from a common source.

Be consistent when ordering your citation sources so that like items are grouped together. For example, Natural Resources Canada may also be referred to as NRC (both of which are acceptable), however in ordering citations from multiple NRC documents select one format and list consecutively by date (from oldest to most recent).
Guidance provided by the Academy of Management in its Style Guide may be found at: http://journals.aomonline.org/amj/style_guide.pdf - see from page 4 for details (disregard the in-text, in-parenthesis identification, as the required use of footnotes replaces this format).

It is strongly recommended that you designate an editor for your Capstone report to validate the coherence of your document, ensure that all required elements have been included and that all citations are accurate and correctly included in the bibliography.

GENERAL RULES FOR ANALYZING A CASE

1. Be concise and to the point. Do not write discursively with an essay-like style.
2. You can use lists and points if you introduce them logically, and conclude on them.
3. Avoid excessive use of the passive voice; take responsibility for your own recommendations.
4. Make sure you read the case carefully.
5. Do not invent major facts or data. If you make assumptions- state what they are.
6. Demonstrate proper use of concepts and make convincing arguments to support your recommended course of action.
7. Alternatives – Identify and discuss the merits of legitimate alternatives but not at the expense of proving your recommendation. The primary task on your memo is to prove your recommendation.
8. Analysis – Each memo should have an analysis section that uses the techniques of the course (or techniques you have learned in other courses) to assess the situation.
9. Appendices – Appendices can be used should you feel that more specific information is needed to support key arguments set out in the main body of the memo.

ASSIGNMENT QUESTIONS

Cameron Auto Parts (A)

1. Should Cameron have licensed McTaggart or continued to export?
2. Was McTaggart a good choice for licensee?
3. Was the royalty rate reasonable?
4. What are alternatives to licensing?

Trying to Create a Stir: Opening a coffee shop in Korea

1. Evaluate the decision of Kim and Andes to open a coffee shop in Korea, Is a coffee shop a good fit for them as entrepreneurs? Is Korea the right market for yet another coffee shop? How are they trying to quantify what seems like a personal decision? What other things should they be considering before making a final decision?
2. Given that Kim and Andes seem to be set on opening a coffee shop in Korea, what factors should influence their mode of entry decision? What are the trade-offs between franchising and other choices?
3. If Kim and Andes decide to open their own coffee shop (i.e. not a franchise), what can they do to differentiate it from all the existing market entrants?

The Espresso Lane to Global Markets

1. Conduct a CAGE (cultural, administrative, geographic and economic) analysis
2. Create a SWOT analysis
3. What does analysis of the CAGE and SWOT show you? Based on these results, which international market should Espressamente pursue next?
4. Conduct analysis using the GE matrix and the BCG Matrix. What do you learn from them?
5. Which variables from the case are the most important in Reale’s decision-making?
6. How should Reale prioritize the foreign markets?

Ruth’s Chris: The High Stakes of International Expansion

1. What did Hannah do to make a first cut in the list of potential countries? How did he get from 200 to less than 35 potential new markets? Which variables seemed more important in his decision-making? Which unused variables might have been useful?
2. What would be your choice for the top five opportunities? The top 10? What equation did you use to reach that conclusion and why?
3. Hannah was focused on franchising as his mode of entry. Do the critical variables change if a different mode of entry is employed?
4. What are some of the internal and external challenges Hannah will face in moving from a list to actually opening restaurants?

Eli Lilly in India: Rethinking the Joint Venture Strategy

1. Did Eli Lilly pursue the right strategy to enter the Indian market?
2. Carefully consider the evolution of the joint venture. Evaluate the three successive IJV leaders. Identify the unique challenges faced by each.
3. How would you assess the overall performance of the JV? What did the partners learn from the IJV?
4. What action would you recommend regarding the Ranbaxy partnership? What are the implications of your recommendation? How would you implement this?

GUEST SPEAKERS: Doing business in the MINT countries
In 2013, Jim O’Neil, the Goldman-Sachs economist who coined the term “BRIC” coined a new term – “MINT”, which is short for Mexico, Indonesia, Nigeria and Turkey – which he believes are the “next BRIC countries”.

Given the increased attention that the MINT countries are receiving, our course will have a MINT focus to ensure that students are not only aware, but they also understand and appreciate the future potential trade and investment opportunities in this increasingly important group of countries. Market selection, assessment and entry strategies will be applied to these countries. As part of the learning experience, a representative from the Embassy or High Commission of each MINT country will be a guest speaker.

IMPORTANT ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

Course Sharing Websites

Student or professor materials created for this course (including presentations and posted notes, labs, case studies, assignments and exams) remain the intellectual property of the author(s). They are intended for personal use and may not be reproduced or redistributed without prior written consent of the author(s).

Policy on Mobile Devices

The use of mobile devices IS NOT PERMITTED in this class. It is disruptive to the instructor and class members. If you carry such a device to class, please make sure it is turned off. If an emergency situation requires you to keep it turned on, please discuss this with your instructor prior to class.

Group Work

The Sprott School of Business encourages group assignments in the school for several reasons. They provide you with opportunities to develop and enhance interpersonal, communication, leadership, followership and other group skills. Group assignments are also good for learning integrative skills for putting together a complex task. Your instructor may assign one or more group tasks/assignments/projects in this course. Before embarking on a specific problem as a group, it is your responsibility to ensure that the problem is meant to be a group assignment and not an individual one.

Person with Disabilities
Students with disabilities requiring academic accommodations in this course are encouraged to contact a co-ordinator at the Paul Menton Centre for Students with Disabilities to complete the necessary letters of accommodation. After registering with the PMC, make an appointment to meet and discuss your needs with me at least two weeks prior to the first in-class test or ITV midterm exam. This is necessary in order to ensure sufficient time to make the necessary arrangements. Please refer to http://www.carleton.ca/pmc/ for all PMC information.

Religious Observance

Students requesting academic accommodation on the basis of religious observance should make a formal, written request to their instructors for alternate dates and/or means of satisfying academic requirements. Such requests should be made during the first two weeks of class, or as soon as possible after the need for accommodation is known to exist, but no later than two weeks before the compulsory academic event. Accommodation is to be worked out directly and on an individual basis between the student and the instructor(s) involved. Instructors will make accommodations in a way that avoids academic disadvantage to the student. Students or instructors who have questions or want to confirm accommodation eligibility of a religious event or practice may refer to the Equity Services website for a list of holy days and Carleton’s Academic Accommodation policies, or may contact an Equity Services Advisor in the Equity Services Department for assistance.

Pregnancy

Pregnant students requiring academic accommodations are encouraged to contact an Equity Advisor in Equity Services to complete a letter of accommodation. The student must then make an appointment to discuss her needs with the instructor at least two weeks prior to the first academic event in which it is anticipated the accommodation will be required.

Academic Integrity

Violations of academic integrity are a serious academic offence. Violations of academic integrity – presenting another’s ideas, arguments, words or images as your own, using unauthorized material, misrepresentation, fabricating or misrepresenting research data, unauthorized co-operation or collaboration or completing work for another student – weaken the quality of the degree and will not be tolerated. Penalties may include expulsion; suspension from all studies at Carleton; suspension from full-time studies; a refusal of permission to continue or to register in a specific degree program; academic probation; and a grade of Failure in the course, amongst others. Students are expected to familiarize themselves with and follow the Carleton University Student Academic Integrity Policy which is available, along with resources for compliance athttp://www2.carleton.ca/sasc/advisingcentre/academic-integrity/.
