The Art of Grant Writing

Amanda Bradford-Janke – Sprott School of Business, Carleton University

ABSTRACT

How do you write a compelling grant proposal that will stand out and grab the readers attention? A good proposal isn't just about having all the sections, it is about creating a story that sells your research idea and convinces the reader that your research MUST be done! This session will help you think through how to craft a proposal that is easy to read, feasible and impactful.

ABOUT THE PRESENTER

Amanda Bradford-Janke is a Manager Research Services and Initiatives, Sprott School of Business, Carleton University. Amanda has over 20 years experience in research at academic institutions. With a BSc. Honours in Neuroscience and a MSc. in Biology (Biophysics) her career has spanned many different disciplines including Clinical Epidemiology and Biostatistics, Nursing, Critical Gerontology and most recently as Manager Research Services and Initiatives at Sprott School of Business. Since joining Sprott in 2018 she has assisted Sprott faculty with the submission of 200+ grant applications and seen over $11.8M in funding awarded to researchers from a variety of sources. This diverse experience has given her a broad understanding of research in several disciplines as well as a keen awareness of the funding landscape in Canada.
