Prerequisite(s): ACCT 5001 and BUSI 5801.

COURSE DESCRIPTION

In this increasingly complex business environment, senior executives in business and public sector organizations require knowledge of financial management. The course offers a broad overview of finance from the perspective of the financial manager. Starting with the premise that the goal of management is to increase the value of the firm, we will discuss the key decisions – investment and financing - that contribute to shareholder value. The investment side will include analysis of the capital budgeting decisions. The financing aspect will focus on equities, bonds, and raising capital in general. Specifically, this course will cover: (i) financial markets, (ii) financial concepts such as time value of money, valuation and yields of financial securities, sources of long-term financing available to corporations, and an overview of the risk-return tradeoffs, and (iii) some basic decision-making frameworks, including capital budgeting. This course is an introductory Finance course and provides the necessary foundation for further studies in Finance.

COURSE OBJECTIVES

This course provides the participant with financial management skills and working knowledge that are essential to the effective management of corporations. The objective of the course is to introduce participants to the fundamental concepts, processes, techniques and practices of financial management. The course explores how value can be created through investment and financing decisions, and the management of risks associated with such decisions. The aim is to: (1) provide a description of corporate financial management and the role of the financial manager; (2) to discuss the role of financial markets and institutions that facilitate the process of financial management; (3) to explore the concept of the time value of money how it is used to value stocks and bonds; (4) to explore the process of making capital investment, and (5) to introduce the concepts of risk and return.

LEARNING OUTCOMES

On successful completion of this course, the participant would have mastered the fundamental financial concepts and techniques, and acquired the ability to apply the techniques to financial problem solving and decision-making in a professional role as a manager or financial analyst. Specifically, on successful completion of this course, you would be able to:

- Explain the goals of Financial Management and the conflict of interest that exists between managers and owners.
- Compute the future value and present value, and apply the concept of Time value of money to real world financial situations.
- Determine the value of different securities, such as bonds and stocks.
- Develop proficiency in the areas of asset valuation and project evaluation.
- Estimate stock prices using the dividend growth model.
- Compare and contrast the different criteria used to make investment decisions (Payback rule, accounting rates of return, internal rate of return, net present value rule, etc.).
- Evaluate the merits of alternative techniques used to evaluate long-term projects.
- Understand how financial markets work and know the historical rate of returns and risks on various types of investments.
- Calculate the expected return and standard deviation (risk) of investment returns and understand the risk-return tradeoff.

PEDAGOGY AND MEASUREMENT OF LEARNING OUTCOMES

To ensure that there is a balance between theory and practice, the pedagogy to be employed in this course includes:

- Lectures & discussions
- Group work
- Case analyses & syndicate presentation
- Individual exercises

Learning outcomes will be measured through:

- Student's participation and contribution in class
- Take home assignments
- Case Studies/Group Work
- Examinations

To facilitate the financial analysis that we will be doing in this course, a financial calculator may be needed; Texas Instruments BAII plus is recommended.

GRADING

The following scoring/weighting scheme will be applied to assess performance of course participants

	Marks	Due date:
• Pre-class individual assignment	15%	handed out Jan 7; due Jan 21
• Take home group case analysis	15%	handed out Jan 28; due Feb 2
• In-class case analysis & presentation	10%	Jan 21 & 22
• Final Examination	50%	Jan 28 (9.00 am on Zoom)
• Participation	10%

PRE-CLASS ASSIGNMENT

The assignment is an individual homework consisting of a set of problems covering application of material you discussed in the MBA math prep session, course Topic 1 (Chapters 1&2), and Topic 2 (chapter 5 pages 123-149) of the textbook which you are required to read before the first class (see the schedule below for more details). I have pre-recorded part of the lectures and posted the videos on Brightspace. Watch the videos before you attempt the pre-class assignment.

To give you ample time for the pre-class assessment, the assignment and the lecture videos will be available two weeks prior to the first class.

TAKE HOME GROUP CASE ANALYSIS

Form a group of 4 students. At the end of the session on the second day, your group will be assigned a case for analysis. Your assignment will be type-written, professionally prepared, with executive summary, a detailed analysis of the case, and appendices showing your workings.

IN-CLASS SYNDICATE CASE ANALYSIS AND PRESENTATION

You and your syndicate group members will be assigned problems and mini cases for analysis during break-out sessions. Your group will do a short presentation of your analysis. You will submit a written analysis of the mini-case case for grading at the end of the presentation.

On Case Analysis

The learning in the class will focus more on the thought process in analyzing business situations, not just on the solutions. In order to derive maximum benefits from the cases, it is essential that you mentally 'get inside' the case situation. Do not approach a case as you would a chapter in a book or an article in a magazine. You are not an observer, but a participant. If a case centers on a decision that needs to be made, put yourself in the shoes of the manager/decision maker. Feel the frustration he or she feels with respect to data limitations. Feel the pressures s/he feels with respect to difficult trade-offs, limited resources, political conflicts, or whatever. Once in class, share your ideas with others.

In preparing the cases, the following simple rules may be useful:

- (1) Adopt a management posture in analyzing cases. Use the assignment questions as a guide only. Your answer should highlight what you, as a manager, see as the strengths or weaknesses in a given situation.
- (2) Familiarize yourself with the facts of the case. Outline the industry and competitive context and the core strategic tasks that the firm should excel at (if applicable).
- (3) Support your analysis with facts from the case. Most cases will not contain all data you might like to have. Nevertheless, you'll be surprised at how easily you can make accurate inferences and useful assumptions if you simply give the current management the benefit of the doubt.

FINAL EXAM

The final examination will be written virtually, on zoom, one week after the class start date and will test your understanding of the topics that will be covered in both the lecture and case components of the course.

DEFERRED FINAL EXAMINATION

Students unable to write the final examination because of illness or other circumstances beyond their control must contact the instructor in writing to request a deferred exam. Permission may be granted when their request is supported by a medical certificate and or appropriate document/s to support the reason for the deferral. Deferred exams will not be granted for students who make travel arrangements that conflict with the examination schedule.

Brightspace

We will be using Brightspace frequently in this course. You should use your student ID and password to access Brightspace. If you want to ask me a question electronically, you will have to send the email through MyCarleton (Connect).

Group Work:

The Sprott School of Business encourages group assignments. They provide you with opportunities to develop and enhance interpersonal, communication, leadership, followership and other group skills. Group assignments are also an effective way to learn integrative skills for putting together a complex task. Your professor may assign one or more group tasks, assignments, or projects in this course. Before embarking on a specific problem as a group, it is your responsibility to ensure that the problem is meant to be a group assignment and not an individual one.

Peer Evaluation for Group Work

To deter social loafing and ensure fairness in grading, you will be asked to assess the contribution of your fellow group members. This information will be used when assigning the grade for the final project. The procedure is as follows: Each student should take 100 points and allocate those points to the various members of the group (including him or herself) to reflect the contributions made by each member. For instance, if there are four members in a group and everyone contributed equally, each individual would receive 25 points. Conversely, if an individual contributed relatively little, the remaining group members might allocate few points to that member. To ensure that these peer evaluation scores are reasonable and free from personal bias, you will be asked to provide a detailed written explanation for your point allocation. You don't have to provide the peer evaluation if each group member contributed equally to the project.
