Exam date: Friday June 17, 2022 9:00 a.m. – 1:00 p.m. Nichol 3020

Drop Course Policy: The deadline for academic withdrawal is the last day of classes each term.

Grading Scheme:

Contribution to class experience	10%
Individual assignments (5 x 5% each)	25%
Group seminar presentation	20%
Individual case submissions (1 x 10%)	10%
Final case exam	35%
Total	100%

Each component of your grade will be assigned a percentage score. Your final course grade will be a weighted average of each of these components. See details for each component below.

Final exam date: Friday June 17, 2022 9:00 a.m. – 1:00 p.m.

Missed assignments and term work:

Students who claim illness, injury or other extraordinary circumstances beyond their control as a reason for missed term work are held responsible for immediately informing the instructor concerned and for making alternate arrangements with the instructor and in all cases this must occur no later than three (3.0) working days after the term work was due. The alternate arrangement must be made before the last day of classes in the term. Normally, any deferred term work will be completed by the last day of term.

Late assignments:

For assignments, to ensure fairness for all students, penalties will be applied to late assignments: Failure to submit an assignment on time will result in an initial penalty of five (5) percentage points, followed by an additional (2) percentage points per day thereafter. For example, an assignment that would normally merit a grade of 80% would receive a grade of 75% if submitted after the deadline on the due date, 73% if submitted the following day, and so on. Requests for extension will be considered in cases of illness, family emergency, or other exceptional circumstances.

Deferred Final Examination:

Students unable to write a final examination because of illness or other circumstances beyond their control must contact the instructor and the MAcc office in writing to request a deferred exam. Permission may be granted when the absence is supported by a medical certificate and or appropriate document/s to support the reason for the deferral.

Course Schedule:

See Detailed Course Schedule at the end of this outline for a detailed class by class course schedule.

Method of Instruction

Mix of seminars, cases, lectures and class discussion. Individual and group work. Independent research will be required.

The professor will post a short (5 minute) video each week to highlight plans for the upcoming week and any upcoming deliverables.

Preparation and Participation:

This is an in-person course. Case discussions, seminars, lectures and other components of the course are delivered synchronously in class. In person attendance for the course is mandatory; this includes attendance for case discussions, seminars and other course components.

The success of the course depends on active, thoughtful participation by the members through contributing to course discussions in class. Posting comments to, or responding to posts made by your classmates in, online course discussion forum are considered as part of your contribution to the course experience.

The expectation is that you will attend course sessions having already thought through and analyzed the case(s) assigned for the class. This way, we can devote the bulk of our time to thinking and responding to each other's analyses of the case and only the necessary minimum to getting the facts out. Active student participation in case discussions is encouraged. Most students typically tend to underestimate, rather than overestimate, the worth of what they have to say. Thus, if you are ever in doubt, you are encouraged to speak up rather than stay quiet.

An important part of this course is case-based analysis and discussions. This is to ensure students have practice in applying assurance concepts and have opportunities to develop their professional judgment. One of the most important elements for this course is thorough preparation and analysis of the assigned cases and reading material. Each student is expected to prepare cases before each class. The learning will focus more on the thought process in identifying (including prioritizing), analyzing and addressing assurance situations. In order to derive maximum benefit from the cases, it is essential that you mentally 'get inside' the case situation.

A template for issues to consider in preparing for in class case discussions is included on Brightspace.

When possible, we will breakout in small groups to briefly discuss case issues prior to moving into full class discussions of the cases. These small group sessions will be a good opportunity for you to test out some of your ideas and to contribute to the class experience. The professor will visit the breakout groups to answer questions and get a sense of class members' engagement in the group discussions.

Brightspace:

Brightspace will be used extensively in this course. It is critical to use this learning tool on a regular basis. We will be using Brightspace as follows:

- To post video and/or powerpoint lectures and seminar documents (some of this material will be available to be viewed asynchronously – i.e. outside of class sessions)
- To communicate with students on regular basis (e-mail, announcements, etc.)
- To submit assignments to receive feedback
- To post problems or readings
- To post notes of an administrative nature or updates to the course outline, if required

To access Brightspace, type in the following URL: <http://brightspace.carleton.ca>

Zoom:

Zoom may be used if necessary (i.e. should be professor be required to self-isolate):

- To host synchronous class discussions and case discussions
- To present group seminar presentations
- To host office hours
- For the professor to meet with students individually or small groups

Contribution to Class Experience (10 percent)

Evaluation of Contribution to Class Experience The vast majority of professional accountants' interactions with others are oral. Depending on the specialty, they may spend very little time reading and even less time writing reports. For this reason, the development of oral skills is given a high priority in this course. Oral communication skills are especially important in a virtual world. The course should be considered a laboratory in which you can test your ability to convince your peers of the appropriateness of your views. Some of the characteristics of effective participation (whether oral or written) are as follows:

- (1) Are the points that are made relevant to the discussion in terms of increasing everyone's understanding, or are they merely regurgitation of case facts?
- (2) Do the comments take into consideration the ideas offered by others earlier in the discussion, or are the points isolated and disjointed? The best contributions tend to be those which reflect not only excellent preparation, but good listening, and interpretative and integrative skills as well.
- (3) Do the comments show evidence of a thorough reading and analysis of the case/reading?
- (4) Does the participant distinguish among different kinds of data; that is, facts, opinions, assumptions, and inferences?
- (5) Is there willingness to test new ideas or are all comments cautious/'safe'?
- (6) Is the participant willing to interact with other class members by asking questions or challenging conclusions?

Clearly, you must participate in class and discussion forums if you are going to share your ideas with others. There is no need to contribute to every class or to comment on every discussion post. Some of the best contributors in the past have been those who participated in only three or four sessions. Their contributions, however, were insightful and persuasive. The issue is one of quality not quantity or frequency.

Given below is a description of how your class contributions will be assessed:

Outstanding contributor: Contributions in class or to the discussion forums reflect thorough preparation. Ideas offered are usually substantive, provide one or more major insights as well as direction for the class. Arguments, when offered, are well substantiated and persuasively presented. If this person were not a member of the class, the quality of the discussions would be diminished significantly.

Good contributor: Contributions in class or to the discussion forums reflect thorough preparation. Ideas offered are usually substantive, provide good insights and sometimes direction for the class.

Arguments, when presented, are generally well-substantiated and are often persuasive. If this person were not a member of the class, the quality of the discussions would be diminished considerably.

Adequate contributor: Contributions in class or to the discussion forums reflect satisfactory preparation. Ideas offered are sometimes substantive, provide generally useful insights, but seldom offer a major new direction for the discussion. Arguments are sometimes presented, and are fairly well-substantiated and sometimes persuasive. If this person were not a member of the class, the quality of the discussions would be diminished somewhat.

Non-participant: This person has said little or nothing in class or in the discussion forums. Hence, there is no adequate basis for evaluation. If this person were not a member of the class, the quality of the discussions would not be changed.

Unsatisfactory contributor: Contributions in class or to the discussion forums reflect inadequate preparation. Ideas are often obvious or restatement of case facts with limited interpretation and analysis or reflect inadequate reading of the case. Ideas offered are seldom substantive, provide few, if any, insights; and never a constructive direction for the class. Integrative comments and effective arguments are absent. Class contributions are, at best, 'cherry-picking' efforts making isolated, obvious, and confusing points.

Brief preliminary feedback on contribution to the classroom environment will be provided to each student at the approximate mid-point of the course. Students are able to speak with the instructor at any point during the term should they wish additional feedback on this component of their course grade.

An additional component of contribution to the class experience is the extent to which you monitor, access and participate in online components of the course. For example, your engagement with course materials posted online, such as video lectures, seminar slides and handouts, participation in general or specific discussion forums etc., is important. In addition, you are encouraged to monitor the discussion forums and to comment or respond to your classmates' posts in a thoughtful, respectful and professional manner. Note that the professor may monitor your online activity in Brightspace and your grade for contribution to the class experience will consider your online, asynchronous engagement in the course, as well as your contributions in synchronous classroom-based course activities.

Individual Assignments (5 x 5% each; total 25 percent)

Four individual assignments will be required. See the due dates and times in the attached Detailed Course Schedule. These assignments are to help reinforce assurance concepts that students have found challenging in the past.

Seminar (20 percent)

Students will be placed into groups by the professor prior to the first class. Each group will be required to research and present a seminar of approximately 30 minutes on one of the assurance seminar topics indicated in the Detailed Course Schedule. In addition, each group will be required to prepare and distribute to the class the slide deck from the presentation as well as a 2-page handout summarizing key aspects of the seminar. These are to be posted in a Discussion Forum on Brightspace to make them available to the class. The professor should be provided with a one-page outline of your seminar by 6:00 p.m. on the date indicated in the Detailed Course Schedule to allow for feedback and direction before you delve too deeply into your seminar topic. The seminar material is subject to examination.

Written feedback on the seminar will be provided to all members of the group within one week of the presentation. This feedback will be returned electronically.

Individual case submission (1 x 10 percent)

Students will be required to prepare and submit a response to a case on the date identified in the Detailed Course Schedule. The intention is to give students timely feedback on their application of assurance concepts in a case analysis and to assist them to improve these skills. Details for the case submission deadlines are provided in the Detailed Course Schedule. Case submissions will be via Brightspace. Feedback will be provided electronically.

The grade for the individual case submission (10%) will be based on the case submission's effectiveness in identifying and addressing case issues (with an emphasis on assurance issues), as well as writing appropriately given the role to be assumed in the case and the intended audience in the case.

Final Examination (35 percent)

The Final examination will be written as outlined in the Detailed Course Schedule. The final examination will be 4 hours in length. The exam will be written and submitted in accordance with MAcc program requirements.
